REMARKABLE VITALITY, -Colonel Jones, of Louisiana, was lynched for the murder of Geo. Lydell. He fought a duel before the war and received an ouces rifle ball through his heart. He not only recovered, but was never afterward troubled with disease of that organ, from which he had previously suffered. At the time which he had previously suffered. At the time of his killing he was shot no less than a dozen times with heavy charges of buckshot before he expired. A private soldier in Powers' regiment of Confederate cavalry, while charging at Olive Branch, was thrust through the bowels with a bayonet, and literally "pitchforked" from the horse, but he disengaged himself, staggered to his feet and split his assulant's skull in twaiz with a sabre. Within four months he was again in active service. T. B. months he was again in active service. T. B. Edwards and E. Daigree, of the Second Louis iana Cavalry, were both shot through the bowels at the battle of Rafourcho Crossing and were pronounced by the surgeons as fatally wounded, the bullets not glanning as in some other cases, but, cutting through the intestines. Both men recovered and did duty afterwards in two or three campaiges. Auguste Morey, a scout for the Trans Mississippi army, was shot between the eyes, the bullet lodging in the back of his head, where it is yet. After his fall an Ohio infantryman rushed up and transfixed him through the breast with his bayonet. Morey was found alive on the field and sent by his captors to a prison hospital, from whence he was exchanged in time to have sav-
